Leavey School of Business

A Letter from Dean Barry Posner

I am delighted to send you this first edition of "Blueprints," our quarterly newsletter about the most exciting SCU Business School project since our founding in 1923: the construction of a new, state-of-business facility for the premier business program for Silicon Valley.

We're sending this first issue to all Business School alumni and friends to let you know about our progress, as well as to recognize our many partners in this project to-date. Our partners both appreciate the significant contribution that SCU's Business School has made to the vitality of our region, and have made an investment to enhance distinguished business education by making a gift to the "Building for the Future" campaign.

We'll be sending out e-mail updates in the months between issues to subscribers to our "E-news Blueprints," as well. (To sign up, see the instructions on the address side of this newsletter.) Future print issues of "Blueprints" will be sent to Business School building donors and friends exclusively.

If you haven't yet become an investor, I invite you to do so now. Call me (408-554-4523) or send me an e-mail (bposner@scu.edu), or visit our website: www.scu.edu/business/building It's an investment in your future as you help us develop the next generation of leaders with competence, conscience, and compassion.

$15 Million Investment in Building

Pioneering venture capitalist Don Lucas has continued his pattern of backing important projects in Silicon Valley with his pledge of $15 million to the construction of a new home for Santa Clara University's Business School.

In announcing the gift, SCU President Paul Locatelli, S.J., praised Lucas for his vision, and called the gift "transformational," and a cornerstone for the University's new business school building.

"Don Lucas continues to put his faith and funding in new ideas and new ventures," Locatelli said in announcing the gift. "With Don's help, we can accelerate fundraising for the new business school building," Locatelli said.

Lucas, whose business is on Sand Hill Road in Menlo Park, has been involved in building businesses in the Santa Clara valley for more than 40 years. He was one of the lead investors in Oracle and Cadence when they were start-ups. He is a U.S. Army veteran who worked at Smith Barney in New York before joining the first venture capital firm on the West Coast, Draper, Gaither & Anderson, in 1960. In his seven-year participation with the firm, he served as both a general partner and a limited partner.

Since 1967, Lucas has been actively engaged in venture capital activities as a private individual. He has been a founder of several Silicon Valley success stories, including National Semiconductor Corporation. He currently serves as a director of Cadence Design Systems, Inc. in San Jose; Macromedia, Inc. in San Francisco; Oracle Corporation in Redwood City; PDF Solutions Inc, in San Jose; and Tricord Systems, Inc. in Plymouth, Minnesota. He also serves as a director for several privately held companies. Lucas received his B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from Stanford University.

His $15 million gift is the largest gift to the Leavey School of Business in its 75-year history.

Two of Lucas' three children, Nancy Thibodeau of Gaithersburg, Md., and Donald A Lucas, of Atherton, graduated from Santa Clara University with undergraduate business degrees, in 1975 and 1984, respectively.

Lucas's gifts have supported business education programs at SCU since 1979, including gifts for a lecture series, for scholarships, and for an annual economic symposium at SCU for Silicon Valley executives. He is a member of the University Board of Trustees.

Lucas said he made the gift "to encourage the continued development of the University, and, in particular, the Leavey School of Business." "The character of the students, their commitment to the community, and their moral and ethical foundation is unrivaled," he said.

Lucas helped fund the 1995 renovation of Kenna Hall, one of two current classroom/office buildings for the SCU business school. In 1998, he was the lead donor to establish an endowed professorship honoring Mario Belotti, SCU professor of economics.

Plans for the new building call for a three-story, 84,000-square-foot structure to be built at the north end of the 104-acre campus in Santa Clara. The building will consolidate all business school classrooms and offices in a single structure, with a high-tech interior that includes MBA and executive classrooms, conference rooms and services on Franklin Street in Santa Clara. It will also be the new home for the University's Center for Science, Technology and Society.
