

Dine and Discuss:

October 21st, 2008
Sobrato BC
5:30 pm – 7:30 pm

Film in Spanish with English subtitles.

This film is a documentary about (and by) workers in Tijuana's assembly factories, the maquiladoras. Maquiladoras are the multinationally-owned assembly plants which dominate the economy of the U.S.-Mexico border region, employing over a million people. Carmen is one of these people. This unique documentary tells the story of globalization from the personal perspectives of Carmen and a dynamic group of Mexican maquiladora workers who together are working towards creating liveable solutions to the complexities of life in a globalized city. The film meets women who are each dealing with the hardships of environmental toxins, labor rights abuse, infrastructure and housing issues, and women's rights. MAQUILAPOLIS approaches the workers as experts who can provide us with keys to our common future, inviting them to co-author their own story on videotape.

Discussion facilitated by Keith Warner,
Environmental Studies.
All faculty, staff and students are welcome!
Refreshments will be served.

Coordinated by the Committee on Multiculturalism in the RLCs.
For more information, contact Mary Ho at
(408) 551-7171

In compliance with the ADA/504, please direct your accommodations requests at least 72 hours prior to the event to Pauline Nguyen @ ppnguyen@scu.edu.