Office and Office Hours: Kenna 321. Mon 11:30-12:30, Wed 10:30-11:30; or by appt.

Course Description:

This course will explore the ethics of romantic and sexual relationships, in light of Christian theological and scriptural tradition(s) as well as reason (including social scientific sources) and contemporary human experience. We will examine overall relational patterns including friendship, dating, and sexual intimacy, with the ultimate goal of integrating our best insights into a creative, constructive, and fulfilling sexual ethic for college students in 2015. Specific topics under examination will include “hookup culture” on contemporary college campuses; the social construction of gender and sexual expression; unmarried sexuality; sexting and/or pornography; same-sex relations/marriage equality; prostitution; and sexual violence. We will engage various theological, philosophical, and social science sources, far-ranging enough to include imagery in the popular media, traditional Roman Catholic teaching, “revisionist” theological (Roman Catholic and Protestant) perspectives, and “third wave” feminist insights regarding the body, sex, and human relationships more generally.

Course Goals:

1. Students will be able to articulate and critically analyze a wide variety of approaches to sexual ethics, both religious and philosophical.
2. Students will develop a "theology of relationship" that reflects their best insights about human and religious/spiritual identity, including what it means for embodied (and sexual) human beings to relate to each other in fulfilling ways.
3. Students will apply the insights from (1) and (2) to various contemporary sexual issues, such as single/premarital sexuality, “hookup” culture on campuses, same-sex relationships, and sexual violence.

Departmental Goals (adapted from RS “Description of the Three Levels”):

1. Students engage intellectually with difficult questions and issues involving religion.
2. Students explore and assess multiple positions and make intellectually defensible, integrative, and nuanced decisions about problems, issues, or controversies.
3. Students bring together their core and disciplinary knowledge, their acquired analytic skills, the intellectual challenge of current issues, and the “meta-questions” that will invoke ethical and ontological concerns.

Departmental goals are embedded in course goals.

Core Curriculum Learning Goals and Objectives:

This course fulfills Santa Clara’s Core Requirements for RTC 3; however, you must have completed both RTC 1&2 requirements and 88 units before taking this course.

- RTC 3.1 Identify diverse perspectives and evaluate ethical positions on contemporary questions. (Critical Thinking; Ethical Reasoning; Perspective)
- RTC 3.2 Evaluate and apply insights from the study of religion to open-ended questions facing contemporary society. (Critical Thinking; Religious Reflection)

Pathways:

This course is associated with the Applied Ethics Pathway. You can find information about Pathways on the Core Curriculum website: <http://scu.edu/core> including specific Pathways, all courses associated with them, and the Reflection Essay prompt and rubric used to evaluate the final essay you will submit.

<http://www.scu.edu/provost/ugst/core/pathways/managing-your-pathway-work/>

SAVE YOUR WORK FROM THIS CLASS

If you declare this Pathway you may use a representative piece of work from this course as one of the Pathway materials you will upload via ecampus during your junior or senior year. Therefore, SCU recommends keeping electronic copies of your work using Dropbox or Google Docs, in addition to your own computer or thumb drives, as secure places to save copies of your work. This may ensure you will have a range of choices when you assemble your Pathway materials and write the Pathway reflection essay.

Texts:

Required:

Donna Freitas, The End of Sex: How Hookup Culture Is Leaving a Generation Unhappy, Sexually Unfulfilled, and Confused About Intimacy

Jessica Valenti, The Purity Myth

Various readings will be available through CAMINO.

Recommended:

Miguel De La Torre, A Lily Among the Thorns: Imagining a New Christian Sexuality. This book is now out of print, but you may be able to locate used copies.

Nicholas D. Kristof and Sheryl WuDunn, Half the Sky: Turning Oppression Into Opportunity for Women Worldwide

Christopher West, Theology of the Body for Beginners

Course Requirements:

1. Readings, Key Learnings, Quizzes, and Short Participation Assignments:

Reading should be done for each day's assignment, whether or not you are assigned to submit anything in writing for that day. Discussion will be a KEY component of this course, and it is impossible to participate intelligently in class discussion without doing the readings. On many weeks, you will be assigned one day for which you should prepare very short reflections (“key learnings” [KLs]) from that day's readings. These are NOT formal essays and can even be done in bullet point format. You should use them to describe briefly (1/2 page or so— 1 page MAX!) 3-4 main points the author is making, and at least one thoughtful question that the reading raises for you. Please turn these in online, into the designated dropbox, before the class for which they are assigned. Other days (noted in syllabus) you will be required to contribute to a discussion board or other short assignment. Important: these KLs and short assignments cannot be made up, so please do not forget to submit them. Failure to complete these on time WILL negatively affect your participation grade for the course. I will not be correcting/letter grading these assignments but rather will use them to evaluate whether you have done the reading and taken the assignment seriously. If it appears to me that you have not done so, this will affect your participation grade for the class. If it appears to me that the

- reading is not being done for this class, I reserve the right to hold unannounced quizzes on the reading, which will factor into your participation grade. (Supports all course goals as well as RTC objective 3.1.)
- 2. Class Discussion: I expect you to participate consistently, actively and respectfully in all class discussions; this is a basic requirement of level three Religious Studies courses. Thoughtful participation in class (through respectful discussion, asking honest questions, answering questions honestly, making comments based on your knowledge of the reading and your considered personal experience, thoughtfully filling out all group writing assignments, etc.) will be required in order to attain an “A” or “A-“ in the class. If you are having trouble finding ways to participate in this communal learning environment, please see me. (Supports all course goals and both RTC objectives.)
 - 3. Anonymous Short Paper: Students will write an anonymous short (3-5 page), experientially-based paper on one of three topics: premarital sex; the relationship between alcohol and sex; or sexual coercion (including “date rape”). In this paper, you will include your own decision-making process and/or experiences regarding your topic, including the sources that have influenced your thinking and practices. You will also seek to articulate the consequences of the choices you have made on yourself and on others, as well as on your own sense of how these experiences have shaped your perception of who you are (self-identity). Unless you give explicit permission to the contrary, this paper will be read only by the professor (without names attached). (Supports course goal 2 and RTC objective 3.2.)
 - 4. Short Analytical Paper: Students will write a short paper (2-3 pages, double-spaced, 12-point font) comparing the approach to sex in the modern traditionalist Catholic “Theology of the Body” and the thought of “third-wave” feminist Jessica Valenti. A more specific prompt will be given in class. (Supports course goal 1 and RTC objective 3.1)
 - 5. Midterm Exam: The midterm exam will be comprehensive (to that point) and will cover material both from in-class discussion and assigned readings. It will be in short-answer and essay format, and it will specifically seek to assess that you have understood and engaged various theological and philosophical ethical approaches to the issues under consideration in this class. (Assesses course goal 1 and both RTC objectives, especially 3.1.)
 - 6. In-Class Debate: You will participate in a small group (of 3-4 students) debating one of several topics addressed in this course. Each group should collaborate to present a well-defined position/presentation in class. Each student will also submit two short writing assignments in conjunction with his/her debate: a 1-2 page (double-spaced) reconstruction of the argument of a scholarly journal article related to his/her position or topic; and a 1-2 page (double-spaced) reflection on insights gained from the debate itself. More detailed guidelines will be given in class. Grading on the debate will be individual, but part of your grade will reflect how well your arguments cohere with those of your teammates. (Supports course goals 1 and 3 and both RTC objectives.)

7. Dating OR Texting/Social Media Writing Assignment: All students will be required to take part in one of two experiential assignments: a) to go on (or arrange for two others to go on) a traditional date (yes, you read that correctly); or b) to take a 7-day complete “fast” from texting and all social media sites. In either case, you will be required to write up your reflections of the experience in a two-page paper. Further instructions will be given.
8. Final Integrative Essay: This paper will be an 8-10 page critical/constructive essay integrating your own insights with those from the relevant readings in order to construct a sexual ethic that is compelling to you. Drawing upon the readings for this class, you will identify and engage at least two (or more) normative approaches to sexual ethical theory as they apply to one issue facing contemporary society (for example, non-marital sex or sex without long-term commitment; same-sex partnerships; or sexual violence). You should support your interpretation of these approaches with citations from the readings themselves; internal citations are fine (e.g.: De La Torre, 60). A more detailed prompt will be distributed in class. You will then integrate what you consider to be the most persuasive of these approaches and insights, in light of your own considered experience, into a coherent and defensible ethical position. (Supports and assesses all course goals; assesses RTC objectives 3.1 and 3.2.)
9. EXTRA CREDIT: Extra credit opportunities may be offered from time to time. To earn extra credit, you will need to attend the entire event and do a short (one single-spaced page) write-up/reaction connecting the event to the issues of this course. A maximum of one extra credit assignment may count for this class. Extra credit write-ups may substitute in for one missed KL or participation assignment.

Assessment and Grading:

- Participation (includes KLS; in-class participation; attendance; quizzes, discussion boards and surveys; anonymous short paper; and dating/Facebook assignment): 30%
- Short Reconstructive Paper 10%
- Midterm 20%
- Debate/Small Group Presentation: 15%
- Integrative Essay: 25%

Course Policies:

1. Attendance: Your attendance and active participation are essential to your success in this class as well as to the quality of our communal learning. You will be responsible for signing the attendance sheet every day. If you forget to sign, you will be marked absent for the day. PLEASE DO NOT sign in another person. Please also DO NOT sign the attendance sheet and then leave; you will be marked as absent for the day if you do this. Frequent tardiness or more than three absences (for any reason) will negatively impact one’s final grade for the course. If illness or family emergency requires you to be absent for more than two class periods, you must meet with the professor (at least by phone) to discuss. Six or more absences (1/5 of class periods) may result in a failing grade for the course unless reasons and makeup plans are approved by the professor. Please do not ignore this absence policy! Attendance and active participation is ESSENTIAL in a class like this, and your grade will reflect how seriously you take this policy.

If you are forced to miss any class, YOU are responsible for learning what took place in class, turning in assignments that are due, and for any material or instructions delivered in class.

2. Lateness: Please do not be late to class. Lateness is disruptive to the class and indicates a lack of respect for the people in this course and for the work that we do together. Three instances of tardiness count as one absence.
3. Use of Technology in Class: The use of cell phones, laptops, iPods, etc. is not allowed in this class, except by explicit permission of the instructor. Please turn cell phones off and put them away. Violating this policy will result in a lowered FINAL grade for this course. Think of this rule as providing a welcome BREAK from your “wired” relationships, so that you can be present to the relationships in our classroom!
4. Late Work: All work must be submitted at the beginning of class on the date that it is due. I prefer to see no late work at all. The grade for late work will be lowered at the instructor’s discretion, most often by one letter grade for each calendar day that it is late. Extensions will only be granted for very good reason and when the student has negotiated with the professor before the due date.
5. Spelling and Grammar: In this class, you will be writing in the persuasive/argumentative style. Because the purpose of such writing is to convince the reader of a particular point of view, spelling and grammar can function either to enhance or to impede your argument. In addition, special attention to the spelling and grammar with which you write is an important overall communication skill. For these reasons, spelling and grammar will affect your grade, and papers with significant spelling/grammar errors are ineligible for an “A” or “A-“ grade. If your paper contains excessive errors in spelling, grammar, or punctuation which detract from my ability to understand or follow the point you are making, it will be returned to you ungraded for you to revise and will no longer be eligible for an “A” or “A-“ grade. I encourage you to proofread your work carefully.
6. Academic Honesty and Integrity: Students must complete the work for this course in a manner consistent with university policies regarding academic honesty and integrity; please refer to the university’s policy on academic integrity: <http://www.scu.edu/provost/policy/academicpolicy/upload/revised-Academic-Integrity-protocol-6-17-12.pdf>. Any student who violates these policies will receive at least a failing grade for the particular assignment and, in repeated or flagrant cases, for the entire course. PLEASE BE CAREFUL TO CITE YOUR SOURCES in your papers! I take violations of academic integrity VERY seriously and do not hesitate to refer students to the SCU Office of Student Affairs when appropriate.
7. Disability Accommodation Policy: To request academic accommodations for a disability, students must be registered with Disabilities Resources, located in Benson, room 216. In order to register, please go on-line to www.scu.edu/disabilities. You will need to register and provide professional documentation of a disability prior to receiving academic accommodations. It is best to read "Required Documentation" on the website before starting the registration process in order to determine what is needed. You may contact Disabilities Resources at 408-554-4109 if you have questions.

Grading Rubric:

A = Exceptional academic performance. Demonstrates mastery of the material. Excellent preparation for each class, and thoughtful and respectful class participation. All work displays uncommonly strong and original critical analysis. Essays are well-documented and arguments are well-supported; and counter-arguments are carefully considered. Communication of your own arguments is thoughtful, nuanced, and imaginative. Written work is free from spelling and grammatical error.

B = Very good academic performance. Demonstrates competency of the material. Prepared for class and thoughtfully engaged in class discussion. Essays are organized, clear, and well-written. Presentation of your positions is done thoughtfully and carefully.

C = Satisfactory academic performance. Minimally prepared for class and only halfheartedly engaged with the material. Essays may have some good qualities or insights but also may be insufficiently thorough or organized; or demonstrate inadequate thoughtfulness, clarity, or attention to nuance.

D = Minimal academic performance. Substandard work and preparation. Essays are insufficiently argued or are incoherent.

F = Failure. Participation and written/oral work bear little relationship to the expected standards of the class.
