Ethics is much more than a set of rules and strategies to avoid legal liability and professional censure. Rather, it is a fundamental way of being in relationship with clients, students, supervisees, and colleagues that both promotes development and prevents harm. This course is an introductory exploration of critical legal and ethical issues in the counseling field, and of values clarification as a method of critical thinking, ethical decision-making, and behavioral analysis. Students will explore the impact of their personal values on their professional work and ethical decisions, and will confront such issues as therapist competence, confidentiality, client rights, conflict of values, the duty to warn and protect, dealing with managed care, etc. This course is designed to assist students in developing a personal methodology for resolving ethical dilemmas around such issues. Students will also become conversant with current legislation related to these issues and other areas of clinical practice.

METHODOLOGY AND REQUIREMENTS:

Class attendance and active participation. Each class meeting will combine lecture and student activity (discussion, group work, role plays, etc.). Because of the highly interactive nature of our meetings, consistent attendance is expected. Students are expected to come to class having completed all reading assignments, and ready to actively engage the material.

Required texts:
previous editions. Students MUST have a copy of this new, updated edition.

Please note: All written assignments (including examinations) should, of course, reflect graduate level writing. This means, at the very least, no spelling errors, correct grammatical constructions, proper use of punctuation, and a discussion of the topic that is characterized by unity, coherence, and emphasis. Please carefully proofread all written assignments. Students who need additional help with writing skills should seek appropriate assistance from University resources before submitting assignments for grading. Writing mentors are available to students at The Hub.

RECOMMENDATION:

Students are strongly encouraged to join the California Association of Marriage and Family Therapists. This is the professional organization for MFTs, and membership will provide you with several invaluable resources, including access to CAMFT’s legal counsel and the bi-monthly magazine, The Therapist. This publication is replete with useful information, and is probably the easiest way to stay abreast of changes and/or developments in legal matters affecting MFT practice.

APPENDIX I
PROFESSIONAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Many clinicians use a disclosure statement as part of the informed consent process. This assignment consists of writing a TWO-page professional disclosure statement which reflects your values as a helping professional. It should include the essence of your views on matters such as:

- The nature and purpose of counseling
- What clients may expect from the process
- The division of responsibilities between client and therapist
- A summary of your theoretical position (free of “psychobabble”)
- A statement of the kinds of clients and problems you are most qualified to work with
- Matters that might affect your relationship with your clients (such as legal restrictions, agency policy, and limits of confidentiality)

Remember, one of the legal aspects of informed consent is comprehension of information. This means that your statement must be written in language understandable by the average layperson. Part of the challenge of this assignment is to translate your beliefs and clinical theories in such a way that your clients can readily understand and know what it is that they are consenting to.

(Examples will be presented in class.)

NEW APA GUIDELINES ON STUDENT SELF-DISCLOSURE

The professional training philosophy of the Counseling Psychology Department is predicated on the notion than an effective counselor must be a whole person. Indeed, in the practice of counseling, it is the person of the counselor that is a major component of healing. As a counselor-in-training, then, self-reflection is a necessary and required part of the training that helps one better understand and empathize with his/her future clients' experience.

Such reflection is a significant component of one's personal and professional development as an effective and sensitive instrument of change. Thus, it is customary that in the CPSY Masters Program's classes at SCU students are regularly assigned work that involves self-disclosure and personal study of the content of that self-disclosure. Students are expected to reflect on their past and present personal experiences in courses and program related activities, in oral and/or in written assignments.
We respect students' rights to confidentiality, and do not require that any particular or specific information be disclosed. Moreover, we do not evaluate students' progress in the program based on the disclosure of specific information (except as mandated by ethics codes or law).

It is our experience that this philosophy and related formats in our classes provide a rich and superlative educational experience, involving more aspects of student experience than do standard lectures or written material which does not include the person of the therapist in training.

DISABILITY ACCOMMODATION POLICY

To request accommodations for a disability, students must contact Disability Resources located in the Drahmann Center in Benson, Room 214, (408) 554-4111. TTY (408) 554-5445. Students must provide documentation of a disability to Disability Resources prior to receiving accommodations.

COUNSELING PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Grading Guidelines 2013-2014

It is customary in graduate programs that final course grades of B, B+, A- and A are acceptable for graduate study. Grades of B- and below indicate that a student has done inferior work at a sub-graduate school level. A student with an average of lower than 3.0 is on probation and if that GA is maintained, is disqualified.

The grading policy in CPSY is that students earn A's through consistent and high quality work. We do not have a system where everyone begins with an A and then loses points to lower grades.

In a normal class the range of final course grades is from B to A with a mean in the A-/B+ range. The range may be quite a bit wider on individual papers, exams or projects that make up the final grade.

Professors may give grades of C for inferior work. A grade of C in any class, except CPSY 200, CPSY 227, must be balanced by higher grades to yield a 3.0 or better GPA. Grades of D or F, or a B- or below in CPSY 200, 216, 227, or 275 automatically disqualify a student from continuing in the program.

In some specialty and advanced classes, there are a great percentage of A grades.

Grades of Incomplete are to be given for extraordinary circumstances. Incompletes must be made up within four weeks of the succeeding term (except Summer) or they revert automatically to a grade of F, and the student is disqualified. The four week period must allow sufficient time for the Professor to grade and record the submitted work. Extensions to an Incomplete are rare, must be in writing and contracted with the Professor.

Normally, attendance is required for classes. One miss out of 10 three-hour classes is considered the maximum that may be missed without penalty. If a student misses a second class, it is at the instructor’s discretion to give a grade of NR (No Record), Inc., or to reduce a grade for lack of class participation. Any student who misses more than two classes should receive an Incomplete grade and repeat the course.

ATTENDANCE POLICY

It is expected that students attend all classes in a given quarter. Should circumstances arise such that a student will need to miss a class due to illness or emergency, the students should discuss this with the instructor. Missing two classes will adversely affect a student’s grade. Under no circumstances will a student be allowed to miss three classes and still receive credit for that class. The course will have to be taken again.

All students are expected to attend the first class. Missing the first class, for whatever reason, will result in being dropped from the course.

CLASSROOM PROTOCOL FOR CELL PHONES, PAGERS, TEXT MESSAGING, INTERNET BROWSING

Please be sure to turn off cell phones, pagers, notepads, etc. when you are in class. It is definitely not appropriate to text message, tweet, internet browse or to engage in any other form of non-class related cyber behavior during class. Students engaging in these practices will be identified as not ready to pursue serious graduate study. Any student discovered engaging in such behaviors will be asked to leave the room, and the student’s grade for the course will be lowered a full letter.

BTW—It is obvious from the front of the room!
