

John Drescher
Executive editor, The News & Observer
Raleigh, NC

John Drescher is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and of Duke University. He started his career covering local and state government for The News & Observer of Raleigh, NC. Later he worked at The Charlotte Observer as a state capitol reporter and in several editing jobs, including government editor, metro editor and front-page editor.

He was named managing editor of The State newspaper in Columbia, S.C., in 2000, and became managing editor of The News & Observer in 2002. He was named executive editor of The N&O in 2007 and is the seventh person to hold that job since the paper was launched in 1894.

His book, “Triumph of Good Will: How Terry Sanford Beat a Champion of Segregation and Reshaped the South,” was published in 2000 by the University Press of Mississippi.