

2016-2018 BANNAN INSTITUTE

SANTA CLARA UNIVERSITY

IGNATIAN CENTER
FOR JESUIT EDUCATION

Louis I. Bannan, S.J. (1914-1998)

“The Bannan Institute seeks to cultivate the University’s moral and spiritual, as well as intellectual and aesthetic values. This involves seeking answers for not only ‘what is’ but ‘what ought to be,’ and it means encouraging the search for a faith that promotes justice.”

~ Fr. Lou Bannan

BANNAN INSTITUTE VISION

The Bannan Institute of the Ignatian Center for Jesuit Education will collaboratively lead faculty, staff, administrators, and students in advancing the Jesuit, Catholic vocation of Santa Clara University as a transformative social force, a proyecto social, building a more humane, just, and sustainable world.

To realize this vision, the Bannan Institute will convene three strategic platforms:

PUBLIC LECTURES

Quarterly public lectures with thought leaders from a wide range of academic disciplines will further an ethic of dialogue around issues of contemporary significance central to the Catholic social, intellectual, and spiritual tradition.

PODCAST SERIES

A thematic podcast on the common good will feature a series of 20-minute segments exploring contemporary social, cultural, and religious issues from the perspective of SCU’s Jesuit, Catholic tradition of higher education.

FACULTY COLLABORATIVES

Interdisciplinary faculty seminars will convene over two years to collaborate on research, teaching, and university initiatives that advance the common good and extend the Jesuit, Catholic vocation of SCU as a transformative social force.

WELCOME TO THE 2016-2018 BANNAN INSTITUTE!

Is there a common good in our common home? St. Ignatius of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuit order, expressed a view dating back to Aristotle, that the common good is linked with a higher order: “the more universal the good is, the more is it divine” (Constitutions, § 622d). Ignatius charged his companions to “help souls,” advancing the common good for the greater glory of God. In our 21st century context, how does this understanding of the common good engage the realities of pluralism and a positive valuation of diversity? Whose good is sought (or discounted) in a divinely ordered common good?

Pope Francis, in his encyclical, Laudato Si’ (On Care for Our Common Home), argues that the common good today must be understood as a practice of solidarity, a practice by which we come to know and value the full and innate dignity of every human person, every dimension of the natural world, and seek to share our diverse goods freely with one another for mutual benefit, for the good of all creation. “The present condition of global society, where injustices abound and growing numbers of people are deprived of basic human rights and considered expendable, the principle of the common good immediately becomes, logically and inevitably, a summons to solidarity and a preferential option for the poorest of our brothers and sisters” (§ 158).

The 2016-2018 Bannan Institute: Is There A Common Good in Our Common Home? will explore pressing issues of racial and ethnic justice, economic justice, gender justice, and environmental justice facing our world today. We hope to serve as a catalyst for faculty, staff, students, alumni, and community members in advancing the common good through a summons to solidarity.
