Upcoming Bannan Institute Events

2018 Bannan Memorial Lecture: *Environmental Justice in the Commons, offered by Pedro Walpole, SJ, of the Ateneo de Manila University, Philippines. Ecology and economy share the same word origin and should be supportive of the whole of humanity in our common home and oikos when both are balanced. The path forward is not simply a flip-over of the present economic model, but begins with every person and every community so that we change from within and discover anew what we value and are willing to commit to in solidarity and reconciliation. Click here to register.

Wednesday, February 21 | 4-5:30pm | Saint Clare Room, Library and Learning Commons, SCU

Environmental Justice Roundtable Dialogue will include contributions from Santa Clara University faculty. Lunch provided. Click here to register.

Thursday, February 22 | 12-1:30pm | Williman Room, Benson Center, SCU

Dispossession, Racism and the Environment

Drawing on over twenty years of research in the Pacific Island country of Papua New Guinea, PHI BETA KAPPA visiting scholar, Dr. Paige West, will examine some of the ways in which inequalities are produced, lived, and reinforced in today's globalized world.

Thursday, February 22 | 5:30pm | Music and Dance Recital Hall, SCU

Social Entrepreneurship for Laudato Si

Keith Douglass Warner, OFM, of the Miller Center for Social Entrepreneurship of Santa Clara University will present on Pope Francis' vision for social change leadership and its relation to the innovation practice of Silicon Valley, where social entrepreneurs disrupt the status quo of unjust markets and unsustainable social behavior. Students interested in the bridge course Warner will offer this semester are invited to stay after to discuss plan participation in the one unit course.

GTU AND COMMUNITY EVENTS

"The Truth About Jesus": African-American History Month Celebrations at St. Patrick Catholic Church

Looking at African and African-American history, is Jesus still relevant for Africans and African-Americans today? What are the common misconceptions concerning Jesus that have been leveled at the Black Community? The following guest celebrants and homilists from JST will delve into these questions during the 10:30am Mass.

Feb. 11. Deacon Benedict Mayaki, S.J. | Feb. 18, Deacon Germain Clerveau, S.J. | Feb. 25 Fr. Michael Edomobi, S.J.

Reception to follow at closing celebration on February 25.

Holy Envy: Writing in the Judeo-Christian Borderzone

Maeera Schreiber, University of Utah, will present on her project that explores the contentious relationship between poetry and religion, to show how poetry flourishes in the Judeo-Christian borderzone, and works to understand the aesthetic, theological and psychodynamic fallout characteristic of this place of in-betweenness. Sponsored by the Center for Jewish Studies.

Monday, February 12 | 4:00pm | Hedco Room, 2465 LeConte Ave, Berkeley

Dominican School of Philosophy and Theology 27th Annual Aquinas Lecture: What Does it Mean to be Immaterial?

The philosophical debate about the existence of non-physical or immaterial substances is seemingly endless, but it is not so easy to say what exactly it would mean for something to be "immaterial." Dr. Cory, Jean Oesterle College Chair and Associate Professor, University of Notre Dame, will propose a concept of immateriality drawn from Aquinas's philosophy of mind.

RSVP here (required).

Tuesday, February 13 | 7:30PM, reception to follow | DSPT, 2301 Vine Street
