Dear New JST Student,

The Jesuit School of Theology strives to cultivate a school environment in which all members of the community regard each person with respect and reverence, in keeping with our JST mission and values. As a graduate school of Santa Clara University, JST participates with the university in providing a comprehensive program for preventing sexual assault and sexual harassment in the campus environment. As part of the prevention program, the Jesuit School of Theology expects you to complete an online Sexual Assault Prevention course designed specifically for graduate students. We partner with Everfi, a recognized expert in this field, in delivering this course that will empower you to make well-informed decisions about issues of significance to your well-being and that of others, both here at JST and beyond.

We believe that you will find the course interesting and engaging. You will examine the interconnected issues of substance abuse, sexual violence, and healthy relationships through a variety of interactive, realistic scenarios and guided self-reflection. The course promotes a healthier and safer campus environment for everyone.

To complete the course, you may work at your own pace from any computer. You can leave and return to the course at any time, and when you return, it will open to the page where you left off.
