Pages ix-9
indispensable, vigil, wrenching

After hearing about the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Papa returns home and burns his Japanese flag and documents linking him to Japan. The FBI takes him into custody for a year.

Pages 10-22
internment ominously, alleviate

Jeanne's family is forced out of Terminal Island; they find a place in Boyle Heights. Several months later, they are bused to the Manzanar Internment Camp. They find out Papa is being detained in Idaho.

Pages 23-34
mischievous, ventilated, ironically

Woody takes charge of the family by having everyone patch holes and clean up the barracks. The internees have to deal with crowded conditions, filthy latrines, and plumbing that doesn't work.

Pages 35-46
edicts, tangible, convulsive

Papa arrives at Manzanar from North Dakota. Jeanne studies catechism to become a Catholic. Woody's wife has a baby. The sociologists want the families to eat together.

Pages 47-59
metamorphosis, defer, arrogance

Papa leaves Japan for a better life in America. He meets Mama, marries her and has nine children. Papa uses his skills to help people at Manzanar, e.g. making dentures.

Pages 60-71
interrogator, brooding, lurching

Papa is interrogated by the FBI in North Dakota. When he returns, he isolates himself from his family and community. He gets drunk and then verbally and physically abuses his family.

Pages 72-80
accumulated, perimeter, debris

Six men beat up Fred T. for being an Inu. A young cook is arrested for the crime. Joe K. stirs up the crowd. A riot takes place and stops after two internees are killed by the military police.

Pages 81-91
simultaneously, goad, lament

The camp administrators give each family a Christmas tree. Every internee over 17 is required to file out a loyalty oath. Woody wants to show his loyalty by joining the U.S. Army. He signs up.

Pages 95-103
shrewd, subdued, stark

The family moves to a larger barracks. Internees are allowed to go outside the fence. Papa makes a Japanese garden. Woody agrees to wait to be drafted rather than volunteer.

Pages 104-116
semblances, invulnerable, aloof

Schools are built; Jeanne attends 4th grade. She tries to fit in by trying out for the many activities organized by outside volunteers. Papa forbids her to become a Catholic.

Pages 117-132
posthumous, assimilate, lethargy

Jeanne's sister Eleanor has a baby boy. This brings Mama and Papa closer together. Jeanne develops a sense of separateness. Woody is drafted. The Supreme Court rules against the Japanese internment.

Pages 133-141
taut, pathetically, sustenance

The U.S. drops an atomic bomb on Hiroshima. Japan surrenders. Internees begin to leave Manzanar. Papa wants to design a housing project and use government loans to finance places for the Japanese to live.

Pages 142-156
conjure, disdain, bleak

Woody went to visit Papa's aunt in Hiroshima, Japan. Papa goes to Lone Pine to buy a car and drives the family from Manzanar to So. Cal., under the influence. The family moves to a housing project in Long Beach.

Pages 157-168
benevolent, acquiescence, potency

Jeanne begins to feel something is wrong with her for being Japanese. She is not allowed to join the Girl Scouts, but instead participates in school activities. Woody gains authority in the family.

Pages 169-182
diverged, mortified, capitulate

Jeanne and Radna go their separate ways in high school. Papa moves his family to San Jose. Jeanne wins the Carnival Queen contest. The staff tries to fix the results. Leashed finds out and threatens to tell. They let Jed finish naming the queen.

Pages 185-203
suffice, subterranean, comprehensible

Jeanne returns to the camp with her family thirty years after her statement. She realizes who she is and finally begins to accept herself. She says Farewell to Manzanar.

Antony & Octavius vs. Brutus & Cassius

Antony, Octavius and Lepidus draw up a list of people to be killed.

Antony & Octavius secretly plan to kill Lepidus.

Brutus & Cassius fight about how to run their armies.

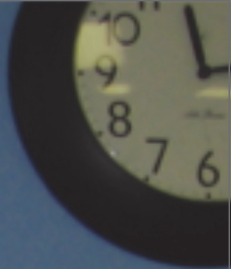

The news from Rome: Portia killed herself & 100 senators have been murdered.

Cassius, thinking he's lost, kills himself.

Brutus asks many of his men to help him kill himself, but they refuse. Finally, a servant helps him commit suicide.

Antony calls Brutus "the noblest Roman of them all." He was the only conspirator who truly acted for the benefit of Rome.

Caesar's ghost appears and tells Brutus he will see him during the impending battle.
