Welcome to the 2024-2025 Human Resources Annual Report. Continuing our journey of iterative HR transformation, this report provides a high-level overview of this past fiscal year with easy-to-digest infographics. Grounded by our shared mission and driven by our vision for the future of Santa Clara HR, your human resources team has made significant progress in support of our campus community. With an unwavering commitment to increasing our competitiveness in today's labor market, the team has advanced key initiatives related to compensation, benefits, recruitment, and engagement, while fostering an environment that helps our employees and students thrive.

The HR enhancements and investments made thus far have provided us with a strong foundation to support the strategic priorities included in Impact 2030. While much has been done, there remains much more on the horizon. We look forward to further engaging employees at all levels regarding this process of continuous improvement and HR transformation. I encourage you to actively participate in upcoming opportunities to have your voice heard via surveys, focus groups, pilot programs, our governance structures, and/or by providing feedback directly via hrservicedesk@scu.edu. Talent Management Metrics and Enhancements:

Onboarding focus groups- new hires:

To deepen our understanding of new hires' experiences and uncover friction points within our onboarding process, we held an onboarding focus group. This approach allowed participants to share candid feedback about what worked and what did not, from the offer stage through the first few days. The goal was to go beyond survey data and capture actionable insights into communication breakdowns, technology gaps, and coordination between HR and hiring departments. Engaging directly with recent hires helped us identify subtleties that standard metrics might overlook, paving the way for targeted improvements.

Onboarding focus groups new-hire managers:

To gather deeper insight into the onboarding experience from the perspective of new-hire managers, we conducted a targeted focus group with those who recently onboarded team members. This discussion allowed managers to compare and validate common experiences around communication gaps, timing issues, resource clarity, and HR-department coordination, revealing not only what new managers feel but also how their teams experience onboarding through their view.

Onboarding Dashboard:

We've updated the onboarding dashboard to offer visible, user-friendly support for essential first-day needs, reducing confusion and empowering new hires to get started smoothly. Now, the dashboard includes:

- I-9 Verification: Form I-9 instructions and a list of acceptable documents, with direct contact info for the HR Service Desk (hrrservicedesk@scu.edu) in case clarification is needed.
- ACCESS Credential Submission: A link to the ACCESS Credential Office for submitting your ID photo, retrieving your badge, or setting up a mobile credential via Apple Wallet.
- Parking Permits: Clear instructions on purchasing a staff/faculty parking permit through Parking & Transportation Services or the MySCU Portal.
- Campus Safety Contact: Easily accessible contact information for Campus Safety Services for both general inquiries and urgent safety needs.
- SCU Password Reset Support: Quick access to the Technology Help Desk's "Quick Start Guide" for setting up your SCU username, password, DUO two-factor authentication, and Workday login.

By consolidating these critical resources into one location, the dashboard directly addresses common pain points so that new employees feel supported from day one.

Talent management

At SCU, we use talent management to attract, develop, and retain skilled employees. Several components of talent management include, talent acquisition, employee development, performance management, succession planning, employee engagement, talent retention, and workforce planning. Talent Management helps our organization achieve its strategic goals, drive performance, and maintain competitiveness by tending to the heart of our University - our employees.

Restorative Justice

Human Resources piloted 8 community circles this year related to: leading staff in uncertain times, the challenge of leading through change, women empowerment, creating space for difficult dialogues, goal and intention setting, rolling forward/falling back, and exploring the new hire experience.

Integrating restorative justice into Human Resources (HR) practices fosters a more inclusive, community-oriented, and accountable workplace culture. By emphasizing dialogue, mutual understanding, and repair over punishment, restorative justice offers a framework for addressing conflict, harm, and misconduct in ways that strengthen relationships and community trust. In HR settings, this approach can be applied to employee relations, conflict resolution, conduct processes, and organizational change efforts—providing space for all parties to be heard, take responsibility, and collaboratively develop solutions. Ultimately, embedding restorative justice principles into HR work supports employee well-being, equity, and a more human-centered approach to workplace management.

Student Employment

HR participated in 11 engagement and outreach sessions and events to connect students to campus employment opportunities.

Impact Highlights:

- Increased awareness of Federal Work-Study and student job search strategies
- Strengthened collaboration with Financial Aid and HR stakeholders
- Improved student preparedness and understanding of on-campus employment processes
- Supported early career development culture for new and returning students

Kids on Campus (KOC)

Subsidized on-campus child care provides a great benefit for employees with small children. This year, we served 22 faculty and 27 staff with a total of 58 children in our classrooms.

- employed 25 students (24 undergraduate, 1 graduate), who gained valuable work and life experience in our community.
- worked with professors from the Education and Counseling Psychology Department to offer classroom observation opportunities for MFT students, which helped them witness and understand the value of play and caregiver relationships. We also worked with an undergraduate Child Studies class that offered their students opportunities to develop effective leadership skills and curriculum strategies.
- installed a new shade structure on the playground after a successful Day of Giving campaign.
- connected with campus departments like the Women's Soccer Team to join a practice and learn from strong campus female role models.
- participated in campus wide cultural events such as Dia de los Muertos and Lunar New Year.

Where we are...

During this past Fiscal Year 2025, the Human Resources team has listened intently to feedback from our constituents and continued to advance our progress in several areas of strategic importance. Informed by the University's Impact 2030 plan, and survey results submitted by members of the President's Cabinet, senior leaders from academic/administrative units, HR liaisons, and Salary Planners, the Department of Human Resources has launched its HR Strategic Priorities. These five priorities will drive our projects and deliverables over the established five year period. Our complimentary strategic priorities include:

- Talent Acquisition & Development
- Total Rewards & Recognition
- Inclusion, Engagement & Belonging
- Strategic Partnerships
- Operational Excellence

Additionally, the HR team partnered with the Benefits Committee to administer the annual employee benefits survey. The survey results reflected a growing desire to better understand the University's diverse benefits offerings, and the desire for customized benefits support. Based on this feedback, the University introduced an interactive benefits enrollment decision support tool via Alex/Jellyvision for both current and newly hired benefits-eligible employees. Alex allows employees to answer questions posed by their virtual benefits guide and provides a detailed comparison of the best benefits options customized for themselves and/or their dependents.

In partnership with the Inclusive Excellence Division, Human Resources has designated a Deputy ADA Liaison, serving on the newly formed SCU Beyond Compliance committee. As the new Deputy ADA Liaison within HR, our Senior Benefits Specialist has worked to revise the employee accommodation process to better support compliance, ADA best practices and SCU's culture of (access)ibility.

The University implemented the Year 1 Action Plan for staff compensation. Following the completion of an external compensation review of approximately 600 staff positions, SCU launched a new staff compensation structure and reassigned impacted staff positions to new salary grades. To support increased transparency, HR launched the Total Rewards webpage, where employees can track our progress for the compensation projects, review our updated compensation guidelines, access FAQs, and sign-up for ongoing open information sessions.

The HR team also piloted two new staff performance management enhancements this year. In an effort to facilitate greater equity and rater reliability in the annual performance assessment process, HR piloted:

- Performance Calibration : process by which leaders convene to review and align performance ratings across teams to ensure fairness, objectivity, and consistency.
- Cascading Goals : strategically aligned performance goals are established by executive leaders and cascaded down to individual contributors.

Where we are going...

Following the success of the FY25 pilot programs for performance calibration and cascading goals, the HR Employee Development team will continue to rollout both of these enhancements to the staff Performance Management process for all Divisions in FY26. To better align our performance management cycle with the fiscal year, we will also be exploring the annual timeline and cadence of staff performance appraisals in Workday.

The HR Benefits team will be launching a 403(b) auto enrollment option for all eligible employees. Auto enrollment will be offered to help our eligible employees build long-term savings and provide a source of income during retirement. Retirement providers and financial planning best practices recommend saving approximately 15% of pre-tax income for retirement. Together with SCU's 10% contribution and an optional employee enrollment at 5%, eligible employees can save the recommended 15% toward retirement planning.

In FY26, the HR Workforce Planning team will be launching our strategic recruitment initiative. This enhancement to our talent acquisition process includes additional resources and support for hiring managers and search committees.

The HR team looks forward to continuing our work on many ongoing projects, including implementing Year 2 of the staff total rewards action plans. In FY26, we anticipate investing further in salary grades 01 - 06 to bring eligible staff to the market-target. Additionally, we look forward to supporting the people-focused outcomes from the 2025 Campus Climate Survey, implementing data dashboards in Workday, supporting retirement savings goals via auto enrollment, and introducing new learning and development initiatives.
